HEADER ADAPTERS

Product Overview.

Bish Enterprises' Header Adapters empower growers to use their preferred headers on virtually any combine, eliminating the need for costly new-head purchases or makeshift modifications. Since Harv Bish's first John Deere-to-Massey install in 1974, our third-generation, family-run team has developed 150+ unique combinations and become North America's largest and most trusted adapter provider. Every kit is engineered, fabricated, and quality-checked in our Nebraska shop, backed by a one-year warranty on fit, form, and function.

Adapter Types & Comparison.

Below is a detailed comparison of our four core adapter kit styles, including attachment methods and reversion details:

Type	Field Work & Install	Attachment Method	Header Modifications	Reversibility & Reuse	Best When...
Adapter Plate	10– 30 min	Pins/clips (rare bolts)	None	Quick removal; same plate serves multiple headers (based on model)	Header feederhouse opening larger than combine feederhouse
Bolt-In Adapter Kit	1–2 hrs	Bolts into factory hole patterns	Unbolt OEM components, bolt in Bish components	Unbolt components; reinstall original parts to return header and combine to stock configuration	Headers with bolt-in design
Cut & Weld Kit	4–9 hrs	Permanent weld seams	Removal of OEM feederhouse guides & mounts. Weld seams on header opening	Revert by installing bolt in components (optional)	Header feederhouse opening smaller than combine feederhouse
Combine Faceplate	2–5 hrs	OEM hardware	Replaces combine faceplate	Unbolt our faceplate and bolt back the factory plate; header remains unchanged and ready for OEM combine	Lateral-tilt combines switching OEM headers

All kits include plasma/laser-cut steel adapter components and protective covers. Hydraulic manifolds, custom hoses, and electrical conversion kits are available separately.

Dimensional Installation Guides: For Cut & Weld adapter kits, we provide comprehensive installation guides that include detailed dimensional drawings and bracket placement templates—no guesswork required.
